OPENING KEYNOTE – FAE JOHNSTONE

Building a United Response to Regression: Strategies to Address Anti-2SLGBTQIA+ Hate

TIME: 9:00 AM – 10:15 AM

Amidst resurgent homophobia and transphobia, powered by a new era of misinformation and far-right populism, we need to build a united and strategic response to defend progress and advance a more free, equal and socially just future. This session will share lessons learned from Queer Momentum’s advocacy efforts, and explore strategies related to messaging, coalition building, building political power and effective campaigning.

FAE JOHNSTONE

Fae Johnstone is an award-winning 2SLGBTQIA+ advocate and small business owner. She is a social worker and a leading voice for queer and trans rights in Canada. She has spent over a decade campaigning for a more free, just and equal world for queer and trans people.

Fae is the executive director and co-owner of Wisdom2Action, a consulting firm specializing in organizational development, community engagement and 2SLGBTQIA+ inclusion. She is also the Executive Director of the Society of Queer Momentum, a national queer and trans advocacy organization. In March of 2023, Fae was featured in an International Women’s Day ad campaign by Hershey’s Canada alongside 4 other young women creating change in their communities.

Fae was the Grand Marshal of the 2023 Capital Pride Parade in Ottawa. In 2023, she was the recipient of the Young 2SLGBTQIA+ Entrepreneur of the Year award from Canada’s 2SLGBTQIA+ Chamber of Commerce.

A1 Reinforcing Psychological Safety, Transparency, and Accountability

TIME: 10:30 AM – 11:45 AM (VIRTUAL)

Anti-Blackness, transphobia, sexism, ableism, and other forms of discrimination continue to negatively impact Black and Brown 2SLGBTQIA+ people in work cultures across the globe. In this session, Jasmine will discuss intersectionality, equity, active listening, harm reduction, and reparations in the workplace.

JASMINE T. WILLIAMS-JACOBS

Jasmine T. Williams-Jacobs (they/she) is the founder and director of Black Remote She, a community-driven platform for Black queer, trans, nonbinary people, and allies interested in working remotely. As a self-proclaimed equity enthusiast and radical communicator, Jasmine launched Black Remote She to connect Black 2SLGBTQIA+ and allies with inclusive work cultures and gender affirming resources. Using their passion and background in digital organizing and community engagement, Jasmine manages Black Remote She as a progressive system of job and resource sharing.

A2 Building Queer Space

TIME: 10:30 AM – 11:45 AM

Creating affirming and inclusive space is critical for the 2SLGBTQ+ community and beyond. The presentation will explore the difference between queering spaces vs. designing and creating purpose-built queer spaces through the lens of Rainbow Resource Centre's, Place of Pride Campus project.

AARON POLLOCK

Aaron is an Associate and Architect with Number TEN Architectural group. With over a decade of experience, he brings a wealth of knowledge to cultural, community and multi-use projects in Winnipeg and beyond. He is an active member of the Winnipeg design community and a proud advocate for social change through his volunteer work with Rainbow Resource Centre and Victoria Hospital Foundation.

A3 ~~Walking Between Two Worlds as a Two-Spirit Indigiqueer in Youth Leadership & Academia~~

TIME: 10:30 AM – 11:45 AM

This presentation will discuss the life's journey of a Two-Spirit Anishinawbe (Ojibwe/Cree) advocate and graduate student who was raised in Constance Lake First Nation, ON. Mallory Solomon (They/Them) uses storytelling and humour to raise awareness about their experiences and challenges in the academic community and Indigenous leadership spaces.

CANCELLED

MALLORY SOLOMON

Mallory Solomon (they/them) is a Two-Spirit Oji-Cree person from Constance Lake First Nation, ON. They are currently in their second year of their Masters in Clinical Psychology at Lakehead University in Thunder Bay. Their thesis supervisor is Dr. Christopher Mushquash. They are also part of Nishnawbe Aski Nation Oshkaatisak Council and 2-Spirit in Motion Youth Council.

A4 Collective Pride: Supporting Activism for Leaders and Educators

TIME: 10:30 AM – 11:45 AM

Disruption, resistance and activism are fundamental to the 2SLGBTQIA+ community. For some, activism involves attending rallies and organizing protests, while for others it is showing up in a classroom, walking the hallways and moving through a school as 2SLGBTQIA+. This activism extends beyond the rights of 2SLGBTQIA+ groups and doesn't exist without anti-racism, anti-ableism, climate action, decolonial lenses, and support systems. We acknowledge these layered systemic harms, and highlight the call to work in solidarity towards equity as crucial in fostering hope as resistance and ensuring that activism is safely supported and maintained in educational spaces.

KATHLEEN WILSON

Kathleen Wilson (they/she) is a 2 Spirit Red River Metis educator with a commitment to building more inclusive and dynamic learning environments and workplaces. Metis by her motherline; family names are Thomas, Parisian, Best, with script land in St. Andrews. Kathleen also holds settler ancestry from Spain, Ukraine, Ireland, Scotland, and England. Kathleen is a lifelong educator, with research interests rooted in Indigenizing resurgence, Queering lens work and safety within education.

They currently work as an Instructor at the University of Manitoba and is working towards her PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies. Personal time is spent exploring with loved ones, learning new things, community centered committee work, and puttering around the cabin.

KIM CAO

Kim Cao (they/them) is a first-generation Vietnamese non-binary high school educator with a focus on queer and intersectional epistemologies and literacy. They currently work with the Met School Exchange, focusing on big picture learning, internships, and technology. They are born and raised on Treaty 1 after their parents were politically displaced. Even with over a decade of teaching experience, they have yet to understand the threshold of consuming too much caffeine. In their spare time, they are insufferable and spend their time getting lost in the bush and trying to 'relax' with their fluff dog, Mojo JoJo.

A5

FundaMental: A Conversation about Queer Leadership and Mental Health in Post-Secondary Education

TIME: 10:30 AM – 11:45 AM

Mental health challenges facing queer leaders in post-secondary education continue to develop across various university and college campuses. In particular, it is the potential impacts arising from intersections of other mental health factors alongside those challenges specific to navigating a post-secondary landscape that presents new pathways to better understanding the challenging and complex environment facing queer leaders and their approaches to leading mental health and resiliency. In beginning the work to unpack these experiences and the challenges underpinning them, we open possibilities to make spaces more inclusive and safer for queer leaders while encouraging future leadership to embrace and expand approaches to healthy leadership practice.

CHRIS YENDT

Christopher/C. Yendt (he/they) is PhD Candidate in the Faculty of Education at UM. Their research focuses on the intersection of queer identities, mental health, leadership and the student experience. Over nearly fourteen years in elected student leadership across undergraduate and graduate studies, they've served in local, provincial and national governance roles. Currently serving their second term as President and CEO of the University of Manitoba Graduate Students' Association (UMGSA), this involvement has spanned dozens of elections, multiple organizations, institutions and provinces. These experiences are centralized in their research as it seeks to challenge the ways in which queer leadership is understood in context with the formation of student identities. Their involvement has also extended to community, serving on the boards of Compass Community Health, Rainbow's End CDC, CMHA-Niagara, and St. Joseph's Healthcare Hamilton. They are a four-time graduate of Brock University, an Ontario Certified Teacher (OCT), a member of the Ontario Association of Mental Health Professionals (OAMHP), and a certified director through the Institute of Corporate Directors (ICD.D).
